EDITORIAL

HAUPTMANN'S MINISTER

A chance to bask in the flood light of national publicity, is more than most men, even a cleric, can resist.

The circular letter recently sent to Lutheran ministers throughout the nation by Bruno Hauptmann's death cell spiritual advisor, is a typical example of modern seeking after publicity. The writer who claimed to know so much about the convicted Lindbergh baby kidnapper, even got the ser of the Hauptmann baby backwards.

The fine and capable Lutheran ministers over the nation will, of course, ignore this letter.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRAT

We are in receipt of our first copy of the "National Young Democrat," the official publication of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

Our reaction after careful study is that the paper is the best and most effective party organ to be obtained, and should be taken as a necessary tool by young members of the party, and we hope that Young Democrats here at Appomattox will subscribe to this fine paper. The rates are $1 per year, and the editor of this paper will be glad to forward your subscription for you.

JUD EVANS

"Jud" Evans, who recently died in Richmond, was perhaps the best known newspaper in Virginia. It is worthy of note that the state legislature broke all precedents as it adopted commerating resolutions in his honor, a great honor for a civilian.

The editor of the Times Virginian was a college mate of Jud Evans. We served together on the staffs of the "Messinger" and the "Richmond Collegian." I followed him as writer of the campus column of the "Collegian." Therefore his death is a sort of a personal loss.

Jud Evans was the perfect news man. He had the three astes so infrequently found in one man: A perfect sense of "news", ability to write entertainingly of trivial events, and discernment to rise to the heights of reporting in events of outstanding importance.

The brother, if his craft saw in him a master artist. And Virginia journalism has lost its most brilliant exponent.

GENERAL HAGOOD

We don't see how there could be any possible disagreement with us, when we declare that there should be no politics in so important a national institution as the United States Army. The national defense should command the talent and membership of our very best manhood, regardless pof political creed.

We are therefore, amazed when we read that the third ranking officer of the Army has been taken from active duty and sent home, by direct order of the president, apparantly for the sole reason that he critized the manner in which WPA funds were being spent.

Such action coming from a man hopefully candidate for reelection, will shock his followers and load the guns of his opposition. We feel that the nation is entitled to an explanation as to the treatment of Major General John Hagood. We recognize the necessity for loyal subservience from political appointees, but we do not include the officers of the Army in that category. If Hagood spoke out of turn, there were other ways to let him know it; the way chosen was "brazenly weak."

SIGNS OF CIVILIZATION

We hear that during January, the Chinese spent some $3,000,000 in the United States for airplanes, machine guns and other war supplies.

Is that a sign, that our missionaries have finally converted China to Christian budgets?

FIVE YEARS LONG ENOUGH

The franchise to furnish the town of Appomattox with electric light and power, expires March 16. The town council will renew same soon after that time. It appears to us that with expenses all about us seeking other towns put in their own plants, and with the growth of government plants over the nation furnishing current, that the field is far from stable. It is not possible now to tell what the next few years will bring. The people are of the belief that a five year franchise is long enough for our town to obligate itself as the time.

BANKERS ARRANGING REGIONAL MEETINGS

Studying New Legal and Economic Conditions Affecting Bank Management

STRESS PUBLIC RELATIONS

American Bankers Association Sponsor of Meetings as Part of Nationwide Program of Banking Development

PHILADELPHIA.—Fifteen hundred bankers from fifteen eastern states met here in January in a two day conference devoted to discussions on legislative, managerial, operating and public relations problems of the banking business. This was the first of a series of meetings planned by the American Bankers Association in its nationwide program of banking development under the leadership of Robert V. Fleming, president of the association. Similar conferences will be held in southern and western sections of the country.

"It is the purpose of these working conferences to bring to association members and other bankers a thorough knowledge of the changes in banking laws and rules, provide discussion of better public relations so that there may be greater cooperation and understanding between the banker and his customers, and to give opportunity for a survey of the problems incident to the Government's experiment with our chartered institutions," Mr. Fleming said in opening the meeting.

To Help Government Quit Banking

The discussions at the conference showed that the bankers are ready to make it easier for the Government to relinquish many of its emergency financial services as soon as possible by demonstrating how their institutions are able to render full banking facilities to the public on sound lines.

Bankers generally have recognized that in times of emergency the Government had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of such conditions. Mr. Fleming said. They also realize that possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which cannot be handled by chartered institutions under the principles of sound banking.

On the other hand, he said, "we should survey all emergency lending measures of the Government to judge which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over by banks in their respective communities."

The attending bankers devoted time to considering the Banking Act of 1935 and the many related regulations and discriminatory powers under the federal law. These were explained by O. Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia, who said he had made a count of the various places in the act where provision is made for discretionary power to be exercised by government officials through regulations.

"Confining the count only to the sections which affect practically all of us, I found there are forty-eight places where discretionary power is given," he said. "It is a problem of no mean importance, therefore, to master banking law as it is today or may be tomorrow."

Bank Taxation and Solvency

Bank taxation was discussed by Charles H. Mylander of Columbus, Ohio, who declared that "the average American is vitally interested in taxation of banks because solvency may depend to a large degree upon the way in which the taxing power is exercised upon them."

To prove his point he cited earnings figures which showed that, in the year ended June 30, 1934, "for the United States as a whole, national banks used $14.59 out of each $100 of net operating earnings, before taxes, in payment of taxes; but in seven of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the percentage of earnings used for taxes was above the average. It was in practically these same seven districts that the greatest number of bank failures occurred in those hectic years from 1920 to 1933."

As an example of how far taxation can go, he quoted official figures showing that in 1934 a large number of small state banks paid on the average $34.20 of every $100 of operating profits for taxes. Mr. Mylander urged that there be "brought home to the average American the self-evident truth that in banks, dealing as they do only in intangible property, are not proper subjects for property taxation; that the true measure of a bank's ability to pay taxes is the earnings it can make."

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as commercial bank members. Member banks display a sign showing that they receive the protection of the association's detective agents, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 200 crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body, says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having sense enough to dodge the far-reaching system of man hunting available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize this once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Detainer warrants have followed them from place to place so that penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."

IN MEMORIAM

In remembrance of my dear wife Jeneva Wilkerson, who departed her life one year ago today, February 28, 1935.
Often my thoughts do wander,
To a grave not far away,
Where they laid my dear wife,
Just one year ago today.
Things have changed since you were here,
But you are not forgotten, dear Jeneva;
Your memory is as dear today,
As in the hour you passed away.
No one knows my longings,
Few have seen me weep;
I shed my tears from an aching heart,
While others are fast asleep.
You are sadly missed by your husband, — Archer Wilkerson.

BANK CHARTERING POLICY REVIEWED

State Official Declares Correct Principles in Licensing Banks Are Essential for Sound Banking Conditions

PHILADELPHIA. — Sound public policy in chartering banks was discussed by Carl K. Withers, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of the State of New Jersey, before the Eastern Conference on Banking Service, held here recently under the auspices of the American Bankers Association. He declared that "few questions are more of the future stability and security of our banking systems loom as more important than can a sound policy in the issuance of the chartering of banks."

Alluding to competitive policies of both state and national banking authorities to charter the most banks in the past, he said that "this country was over-banked, and that aside from any other consideration, economically and otherwise, this condition was brought about largely through an unwise, unsafe and unthinking charter policy, alternating between the state and national systems, which has marked and hampered banking progress in this country since its very inception."

Political Influence

He decried political considerations in connection with the chartering of banks, saying: "Political influence has no more place in banking than it has in the deliberations of our highest tribunal—the Supreme Court of the United States. Until this is recognized and brought into being within both our state and national systems, we may never feel safe against the shifting tides of political expediency."

As to the "element of sometimes ridiculous competition heretofore existing between the state and national systems," he said that much may be said in favor of the progress made in recent years. In many states there exists a practical working agreement between local supervising authorities and the federal authorities, whereby all charter applications are mutually considered on a basis of community need rather than competitive advantage as between systems. In some states this arrangement goes even further in the refusal of the one authority to even consider a charter while pending with the other, he declared.

Aside from the competitive and political aspects of our future charter policy, he continued, there are several others more individual and local which merit consideration. Among those he mentioned honesty of purpose, community need, the character of management and adequacy of capital.

Most state laws make reference to the "character, responsibility and fitness" of the incorporators of a new bank, he said, continuing:

"So important do I conceive this factor to be, that I place it first among those for consideration, for unless the motive is sound, honest and sincere, there is little likelihood that the resultant institution in its service to the community will reflect other than the spirit of its founders.

Trust Institutions

A directory of trust institutions published by the Trust Division, American Bankers Association, lists 2,553 institutions having aggregate capital funds of $4,416,000,000 and total resources of $5,443,000,000. It shows a total of 6,261 men and women engaged in this phase of bank work. The trust institution comprise 1,356 state-chartered trust companies and banks and 1,497 national banks with trust departments located in 1,684 cities and towns.

Public Confidence

Challenging a recently published statement that there is an "apparent loss of public confidence in banks," William A. Boyd of Ithaca, N. Y., asks why, if this were true, bank deposits are constantly increasing. "I maintain that any banking institution which has continued to serve its community since the trying days of 1929 must be enjoying the respect and confidence of that community, and I am sure that the very large majority of banking institutions which have come through this depression have never had to regain public confidence," he says.

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.
Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?
DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.
Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.
Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills.

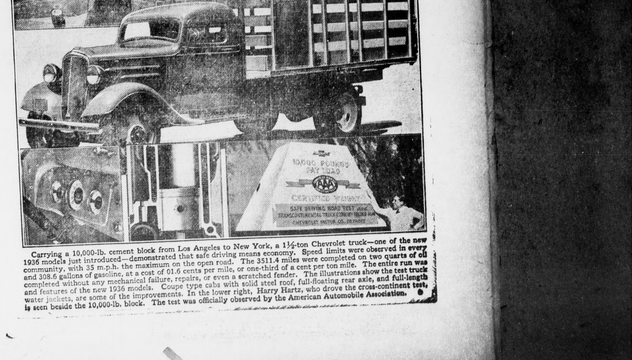
New Chevrolet Truck on Economy-Safety Run



Carrying a 10,000-lb. cement block from Los Angeles to New York, a 1½-ton Chevrolet truck—one of the new 1936 models just introduced—demonstrated that safe driving means economy. Speed limits were observed in every community, with 35 m.p.h. the maximum on the open road. The 3511.4 miles were completed on two quarts of oil and 338.6 gallons of gasoline, at a cost of 61.6 cents per mile, or one-third of a cent per ton mile. The entire run was completed without any mechanical failure, repairs, or even a scratched fender. The illustrations show the test truck and features of the new 1936 models. Coupe type cabs with solid steel roof, full-floating rear axle, and full-length water jackets, are some of the improvements. In the lower right, Harry Hartz, who drove the cross-continent test, is seen beside the 10,000-lb. block. The test was officially observed by the American Automobile Association.
